Administration

- Mark Ginsberg, Dean
- Martin Ford, Senior Associate Dean
- Ellen Rodgers, Associate Dean for Student and Academic Affairs
- Iris Robinson, Assistant Dean for Student and Academic Affairs

College Code: E1

The college is committed to excellence, innovation, and collaboration in research and the preparation of professionals for the highest levels of practice and service in diverse schools, organizations, and communities.

CEHD provides leadership in transforming schools, organizations, and communities through research, teaching, and collaboration. CEHD faculty members prepare scholars and practitioners through multidisciplinary programs of study that facilitate the understanding, integration, and application of knowledge. Through research activities, faculty and students expand and refine the knowledge base for teaching and learning. In response to the richness and complexity of a pluralistic society, CEHD infuses diversity into academic programs and research. The faculty develops and supports knowledgeable, caring, and reflective professionals who facilitate excellence and equity for all learners. CEHD students and faculty demonstrate their growth and development in ways meaningful to their communication and professional organizations. Innovative programs and the integration of technology provide opportunities for students to develop, examine, evaluate, and practice professional knowledge, skills, and dispositions.

Undergraduate Degrees, Minors, and Certificates

CEHD offers six undergraduate degrees, fifteen minors, and seven undergraduate certificates. The School of Recreation, Health, and Tourism within the College of Education and Human Development collaborates with the College of Humanities and Social Sciences, the School of Business, the College of Science, the Volgenau School of Engineering, the College of Visual and Performing Arts, and the School for Conflict Analysis and Resolution to offer seven minors in interdisciplinary areas of study. Students may elect to take a minor in addition to their major field of study. For policies governing all minors, see AP.5.3.4 Minors.

In addition, CEHD collaborates with the College of Science (Departments of Atmospheric, Oceanic, and Earth Sciences; Biology; Chemistry and Biochemistry; Mathematical Sciences; and Physics and Astronomy) to offer undergraduate secondary education certificates and the College of Visual and Performing Arts (Schools of Dance, Music and Theater) to provide programs in music education, theater education, and dance education that can lead to VA teaching licensure. CEHD also collaborates with School of Integrative Studies to support three interdisciplinary degree concentrations which prepare students for graduate study in education.

Graduate Degrees and Certificates

CEHD offers one doctoral degree, eight master's degrees, and forty graduate certificates.

Requirements & Policies

Policies

In addition to the policies stated in Academic Policies, the following policies and procedures apply to all students in the college.

Communication Policy

All correspondence from the program, school, college, and university administration is sent to the student's official Mason e-mail account. Students must use their Mason e-mail account to communicate with their programs and other administrative units.

CEHD Academic Policies

Students are ultimately responsible for their academic progress towards their degrees and/or certificates. They are strongly advised to consult Academic Policies for information concerning university-wide requirements for degree and nondegree students in addition to those for this college. Students with questions regarding academic policies and college-level requirements should contact the CEHD Student and Academic Affairs Office (Thompson Hall, Suite 2300; 703-993-2080; cehdsaa@gmu.edu). Additional policy information and forms are available online. (<http://cehd.gmu.edu/saa>)

CEHD Grading Policy

All CEHD undergraduate and graduate students are held to the university grading policies as described in AP.3 Grading. Those students enrolled in a CEHD licensure program have higher minimum grade requirements which are detailed in each specific program's page.

Grade Appeals

Students may appeal grades that they believe were assigned unjustly or were based on unclear criteria in accord with Academic Policies. Grade appeals should initially be directed to the Academic Program Coordinator for courses taken within the College of Education and Human Development. If the student is not satisfied with the outcome of the appeal at the program level, it may be submitted to the Office of Student and Academic Affairs for review. The Associate Dean's decision is considered final and not subject to further appeal.

Study Elsewhere

Once enrolled in degree status at Mason, undergraduate students with fewer than 60 hours of transfer coursework (not including registration through the Consortium of Universities of the Washington Metropolitan Area or coursework completed through the Center for Global Education) may take up to twelve credits of coursework in CEHD disciplines at another institution. Students with 60 or more hours of transfer coursework are not permitted to take additional coursework in CEHD disciplines at another institution. A student may seek permission for additional hours beyond these limits for summer registration if his/her permanent residence is more than fifty miles from the Fairfax campus. Students who enroll elsewhere without advance written permission will not receive transfer credit for the coursework taken at another institution unless they re-apply for admission to Mason as transfer applicants and meet all priority deadlines. Re-admission is not guaranteed and transfer credit is awarded based upon course equivalencies in effect at the time of re-admission. Courses previously attempted at Mason (including withdrawals) cannot be taken elsewhere.

Professional Teacher Licensure

CEHD is responsible for professional courses, special standards, and licensure recommendations for students completing state-approved (Virginia) licensure programs that prepare teachers, administrators, counselors, and related-instructional personnel.

Initial teacher licensure is available at the undergraduate level in biology, chemistry, dance, earth science, health and physical education, mathematics, music, physics, secondary education English, and theatre arts. Initial teacher licensure is available at the graduate level in art, early childhood, elementary, English as a second language, foreign language, secondary, and theatre arts. The Special Education Program offers initial teacher licensure exclusively through graduate certificates that include Early Childhood Special Education, Visual Impairment, Students with Disabilities who Access the General Curriculum, and Students with Disabilities who Access the Adapted Curriculum.

For more information please contact the CEHD Office of Admissions (Thompson Hall, Suite 2200; 703-993-2892; cehdgrad@gmu.edu). Additional information is available online (<http://cehd.gmu.edu/admissions>).

Notes on Background Checks and Licensure:

The majority of Mason CEHD programs require multiple field experiences. Our school and agency partners require Mason students to be fingerprinted and pass a criminal background check prior to field experience work. Students must assume the risk that classes may be deferred and their program delayed due to the individual severity of notations on such a check and review by individual agencies.

George Mason University will verify completion of the requirements of a Virginia Department of Education (VDOE) state-approved preparation program at the graduate or undergraduate level. Such verification does not guarantee the issuance of Virginia Collegiate Professional, Postgraduate Professional, or Pupil Personnel license from the Commonwealth of Virginia. It is solely the student's responsibility to comply with all requirements for licensure by the Commonwealth. Under Virginia law, a social security number is required for licensure.
