The School of Nursing is a teaching/learning organization with a national and international academic reputation, grounded in sound general education. It develops and supports a diverse faculty who are visionary and competent practitioners, scholars, and researchers, excellent in teaching in academic and practice settings, and responsive to the needs of students and the community. Specifically, the nursing programs prepare graduates to function as providers, coordinators, and managers of care and for leadership, advanced practice, and nurse scholar roles, as well as members of the nursing profession. Graduates of the School of Nursing are prepared to function as interdisciplinary health professionals and citizens who provide leadership, care, and service to the community. The School promotes health and well-being through its programs and centers, engaging in scholarly activities and research with the aim of maximum health for all people. Part-time students are encouraged to take at least 6 credits per semester to promote timely completion of the program.

Faculty

School Faculty

Professors
Gaffney, Milligan

Associate Professors
Davidson, Douglas, Hatcher, Mallinson, Oh, Peppard, Rodan, C. Sutter, R. Sutter, Urban (director)

Assistant Professors
Brewster, Garrison, Harman, Iannitto, Kelly, Kie, Kodake, Middle, Miklancie, Oetjen, Payne-Borden, Scafide, Stoehr, Toulouse

Instructors
Burke, Goodknight

Administrative Faculty
Ferssizidis, Westberg

Emeriti
Ailinger, Boland, Boyd, Brenkus, Carty, Chong, Jenkins, Langley, Moore, Moss, Normile, Parker-Smith, Redmond, Silva, Sorrell, Travis, Vail, Walker, Wu