Overview

Investigates historical and modern examples of genocide and crimes against humanity. Builds an understanding of social, cultural, political, historical, legal, and moral ideas that explain how genocide and crimes against humanity arise, and how they can be prevented. Thoughtfully evaluates current efforts to seek justice, and remember, memorialize, and recover from genocide and crimes against humanity. Emphasizes career preparation in international law and criminal justice, human rights advocacy, genocide prevention, and museum and K-12 and education.
