The university offers a variety of housing options to meet the diverse needs of undergraduate and graduates students living on the Fairfax and SciTech campuses. Upper-division students may choose from suites, apartments, and townhouses. Most freshmen live in traditional-style residence hall rooms that accommodate two, three, and four students with community bathrooms on each floor. Room rates are subject to approval on an annual basis by the Board of Visitors. Rates for the 2023-2024 academic year should be available on or before May 1, 2023. Please refer to the Housing and Residence Life website for rate information. All students in housing must provide a prepayment, which is credited back to the student in the fall. All freshmen students are expected to reside on campus or submit an exemption request. The website provides extensive information about housing programs and services and includes floor plans for most student rooms.

Students living on campus are required to sign a full academic-year agreement. Releases from the agreement are generally granted only in cases of hardship and may involve a financial penalty. For more information, contact Housing and Residence Life.

Learning Communities (LCs) are collaborative partnerships between academic departments, individual Mason faculty, housing and residence life staff, and the division of University Life. For more information, please visit the housing website (<https://housing.gmu.edu/learning-communities/>).
